JANESVILLE TAKES IMPORTANT PART IN
U. S. DYE INDUSTRYThree million pounds of raw cotton and yarn are annually dyed at the Janesville Bleaching and Dye Works of Janesville. This concern enjoys tremendous prosperity, partly due to the war and partly due to increased facilities in their plant and decrease of foreign competition.The company employs nearly forty men, most of them skilled in the intricacies of the dyeing process, and twenty women, who work at the machines which wind the yarn onto the spools. Skilled labor is the most necessary adjunct to the dyeing industry, for without skilled help it would be impossible to dye yarn evenly or get the right shade.The Jones Bleaching and Dye works are now rushing the completion of their new $13,000 building which replaces the structure which was destroyed by fire some time ago. They are also considering the erection of another addition in the near future.These dye works are the largest and best equipped outside of the city of Philadelphia. Because of its facilities, large government contracts have been awarded for the dyeing of the material for naval and the khaki uniforms. About 7,000 pounds of dyed raw material for the army or navy is turned out daily. It also dyes and bleaches approximately 8,000 pounds of yarn and raw cotton and wool for individual manufacturers.To estimate the quantity of the work done here, 300 pounds of dyes are used daily for raw material and cotton and yarn which is turned out. It is a well known fact that only a small portion of powder will be sufficient to color quite a few articles. All of the dyes used by the Jones Bleaching and Dye works are manufactured in this country. The dyes now made in the United States are "fast." This shows what strides have been made in the dye industry, which until the war came was dependent upon Germany for its supply.Three hundred pounds of dye in a day, or approximately 90,000 pounds a year, demand an outlay of nearly $100,000 for the dye alone.All of the various phases in dyeing and the latest machinery and vats known in the intricate industry are used here. The latest innovations are concrete dyeing vats and an absolutely fire-proof drying oven.All material is thoroughly inspected by skilled workers before it leaves the factory. No retail dyeing is done at the factory. The plant is taxed to the limit by rush orders of large cloth manufacturers and clothing concerns.The company employs an expert chemist who analyzes and mixes all of the dyes used. They have warehouses with more than one million capacity. Besides the dyes, more than 2,000 pounds of other chemicals are used every day.700 POUNDS OF MEAT SAVED ON TUESDAYSAll Cafes Are Now Observing Two Meatless Meals on "Meatless Tuesdays."Introduction of meatless days in Janesville has resulted in the saving of more than seven hundred pounds of meat on "Meatless Tuesdays."
This is the patriotic response of Janesville's hotels, restaurants and lunchrooms to the request of the Food Administrator for conservation of food which will win the war. "The Food Administrator's slogan is "Save Food and Win the War" and this slogan has now become the pass word of every food caterer in the city.The only complaints evinced by the local hotels, restaurants and lunch-rooms is in regard to the uniformity in observing meatless days. They believe that a law ought to be passed which would make the sale of meat on Tuesday illegal. This is the consensus of opinion of all. The competition among the cafes in Janesville is so keen that there is an uneasiness in denying meat to irreverent persons who have no right to be called Americans.James Williams of the Apollo Cafe said: "I would like to observe meatless day all day as much as anyone else, but others are serving meat for supper and also short orders. The government ought to pass a law so no one will be permitted to eat meat on Tuesdays—have the butchers sell only fish on that day." The opinion of the other cafes is approximately the same. They seem to be suspicious that some one else will take some of their business.The following are the figures given to the Gazette reporter when he interviewed them on the amount of meat saved on Tuesdays: Kelley's Cafe saved 25 pounds of meat. Commercial 30 pounds, Newell's Cafe 20 pounds, Mrs. Bick's 100 pounds, Apollo Cafe 25 pounds, Hutchins' WienerCafe 40 pounds, MacDonald's 250 pounds, Grand Hotel 75 pounds, Myers' hotel 60 pounds, Savoy Cafe
100 pounds, Tea Bell 40 pounds.GERMAN AVIATOR MAY BE HEIR TO ESTATECaptain Boelcke, Dead German Hero,
May Be an Heir to Estate of Fred Boelcke, Town of Porter.Howard Lee was yesterday appointed administrator of the estate of the late Fred Boelcke, who died in the town of Porter last September. The estate is valued at some three thousand dollars but nothing can be done with it at the present time until the heirs have been located. It is thought that a famous German aviator, Captain Boelcke, who was recently killed in an air duel, after bringing down forty airplanes, is either his son or his nephew.Judge Charles L. Field recently broached the subject to the Swiss consul at Chicago and at the present time
he is conducting an investigation to establish the relationship between the two Boelckes. Fred Boelcke is known to have had a family in Germany, and a daughter made her home in this city at one time. She lived here for thirty-seven years but finally returned to Germany.Captain Boelcke came to this country in 1883 and later took up a farm in the town of Porter. Whether any members of his family in Germany are still living is unknown. It is hoped that the Swiss consul will obtain some information at an early date. If he is unsuccessful in his attempt it will be necessary to turn over the estate to the hands of the custodian of alien property at Washington until the end of the war. When diplomatic relations are again resumed it will then be possible to conduct a more thorough search for the heirs.NEW U. S. OFFICERS
IN CHARGE OF DRILLHigh School Companies Are Sent Through Long Session, State Guard Will Drill Thursday Evening.Lieutenants Donald Korst, Batous Kelly and Harry Dutcher, who have just returned from three months of training at Fort Sheridan, where they received commissions in the infantry of the national army, were in charge of the two high school military companies at their regular drill meeting held at the armory of the Sixteenth Separate Company. Under their able guidance the boys were sent through the various movements and the manual of arms which they had learned at Fort Sheridan.Lieutenant Korst and Lieutenant Kelly took charge of one company, spending the time in explaining and conducting the drills. The boys received orders for the various close order marching movements. Although at first the boys failed to grasp the new commands, by the close of the drill they were executing the commands into veterans and fine results were obtained.Lieutenant Dutcher had charge of the other company and instructed the boys in the manual of arms. The boys responded to the many commands and were able to handle the gun with a snap before they drilled the members of the other company.The members of the other company are now hard at work selling the tickets for the benefit moving picture performance at the Majestic on December 11 and 12. The proceeds of the fair will be used to put in a fund with which to buy uniforms for the boys so that they will present a creditable military organization. The tickets are reported as being sold rapidly, but there are many left and during the week the boys will make the final drive to sell out the entire house for all performances.The three Lieutenants who have been in charge of the drill last evening and Lieutenant John Groat will take charge of the drill work of the Sixteenth Separate Company. Due to the opportunity presented it being able to secure the services of the officers the extra drill period was decided on for Thursday evening. A dance will be given promptly after the drill, at which a large crowd is expected to be present. The drill will start at seven-thirty.ROCK COUNTY COAL DEALERS WILL GATHER ON THURSDAYThe Rock County Coal Merchants' association will hold a meeting at the Court House on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock to discuss the present situation. This will be the second meeting of the association.Omission: The name of Mrs. C. C.
Tuite should have appeared in the list of the lady workers in the K. C.
drive, which was published last night.

DAIRYMEN MAY AID IN WINNING THE WAR

Madison, Wis., Dec. 5.—"If Wisconsin had more herds like that belonging to William Hohenstein of Albia Center we would not need to worry so much about one William Hohenzoller."

A significant statement is made by Noel Negley, field agent of the Wisconsin Dairymen's association in his report upon the work being done in the 34 cow-testing organizations in the state.

"During the past month the man in Wisconsin who produced the most food per cow," says Mr. Negley, "is Mr. Hohenstein. Each of the cows in his herd produced an average of 966 pounds of milk and 38.5 pounds of butterfat, in the thirty-one days."

Mr. Negley is convinced that the dairyman as a food producer has a great responsibility and as great an opportunity to serve his nation.

"The future of the present dairyman," declares Mr. Negley, "depends upon his efficiency in the management of his business. A strong back and a good arm are essential in every line of work, but the dairyman of today, if he is to succeed, must make use of certain other portions of his anatomy. Of course some use all the anatomy that God gave them and then do not succeed. Often this is because they work alone and without the co-operation of their neighbors and without modern machinery. It was because man became dissatisfied with himself and his progress that he threw away his corn knife and bought a corn binder; he lost the old cream ladle and found a cream separator; he discarded the flail and discovered the threshing machine. He fired the inefficient hired man and may have hired a slacker cow and is raising patriots. He used to guess and now he knows."

"During the past month the 34 cow-testing associations of Wisconsin have discarded 174 unprofitable cows and have contributed in many other ways to the varying prosperity of their members and the state."

UNIVERSAL TRAINING.

Universal military training is one of the certainties of the immediate future. There is a question about it. This nation was caught unawares, despite frequent warnings, when the present war broke out, but never again will it have to undergo the trying months that it is now experiencing. Universal military training is the solution of the problem and the youths of this country from sixteen to eighteen years will be given a preliminary training that will be both beneficial and useful in future years, even if we are not at war.

However, the Janesville high school has taken time by the forelock. Two companies have been organized among the students—purely voluntary service—but most enthusiastic. They drill each Tuesday night, and while they are still without uniforms and use the uniforms of the Sixteenth Separate company for drill purposes, only fifty of them being able to drill with them at a time, they have stepped in advance of the government requirements, and when universal service is demanded will be in a position to take place among their less fortunate mates without the experience of military training.

This company is seeking to arm and uniform itself by its own individual efforts. They are to hold a benefit picture performance to raise funds for the uniforms. If any citizen doubts the sincerity of these boys they are currently requested to be present at any of the Tuesday evening drills and witness them in action. The drills are held in the armory of the Sixteenth Separate company, Wisconsin State Guard, and the public are invited.

Universal military training is going to be the watchword of the future, and the Janesville school boys are taking a step in advance of the general order. Already enlisting sergeants are receiving permission to take men from sixteen to thirty-five for military service. Sixteen to eighteen with their parents' or guardians' consent, and from that age on, on physical fitness. Look to the future and see what they will require of the youths of today. Meanwhile our boys are with us, and aid them as you can.

TO THE WORLD.

President Wilson delivered a message to the entire civilized world on Tuesday when he read one of the most remarkable state papers ever filed in Washington to the joint session of congress. It was a statement of facts in language that even the Kaiser will need to have no interpreter translate for him. His attitude is firmly given in language that can not be mistaken nor misunderstood.

The following are some high lights from President Wilson's message delivered before a joint session of congress on Tuesday:

One very embarrassing obstacle that stands in our way is that we are at war with Germany, but not with her allies. I, therefore, very earnestly recommend that the congress immediately declare the United States in a state of war with Austria-Hungary.

Our present and immediate task is to win the war and nothing shall turn us aside from it until it is accomplished.

Every power and every resource we possess, whether of men, of money or of materials, is being devoted and will continue to be devoted to that purpose until it is achieved.

Any peace that America makes must not only deliver the people and the lands of Belgium and northern France from Prussian conquest, but also must deliver the people of Austria-Hungary, the Balkans and Turkey from the impudent and Prussian military and commercial autocracy.

First, this intolerable thing of which the masters of Germany have shown us the ugly face, this menace of combined intrigue and force which we now see so clearly, and the German power, a thing without conscience or honor or capacity for covenanted peace, must be crushed.

The thought of the plain people throughout the world is the air of all governments must henceforth breathe if they would live.

We intend no wrong against the German empire, no interference with her internal affairs.

The wrongs, the very deep wrongs, committed in this war will have to be righted.

We are seeking permanent, not temporary foundations for the peace of the world, and must seek them candidly and fearlessly.

We shall regard the war as won only when the German people say to us through properly accredited representatives that they are ready to agree to a settlement based on justice and the reparation of the wrongs their rulers have done. They have done a wrong to Belgium that must be reparation.

UGLY BUILDINGS.

One of the big problems of civic life is that constituted by unsightly buildings. According to the prevailing theory, every man's house is his castle, and you can't interfere with it. If a man wants to erect some horrible unsightly structure, polluting the looks of a whole neighborhood, there is in most places no law or regulation that can touch him.

It seems a wrong principle to allow the individual thus to injure a community. Yet our people are suspicious of too much regulation. They are fearful that if some inspector were given power over such matters, they would be subject to political influence and inefficiency.

The market, the obligation all the strongest on the individual to make his property attractive, and to see that every change made is of the nature of an improvement. Also a dilapidated building is a non-productive occupant of land. If there is any income there would be a good deal more in one that pleased the eye.

The metropolitan papers mark 7 a.

m. editions printed at noon, and while they are about it, it is strange that they don't date their issues one day ahead.

Considering the need for time and money for war purposes this year, it is respectfully suggested that our wives don't give us at Christmas any of those needle boxes all tangled up with satin ribbon and embroidered bow knots.

There are still a few people left who think you can get trade by ornamenting a lovely and secluded rural scene with a billboard that soon gets dirty and defaced, and makes the place look like a city slum.

While some of our economists are sitting in their easy chairs they question the value of the army Y. M. C. A. work and the soldier boys are crowding into the association huts and standing up for lack of seats.

Milk kills six per cent of our race, says a Boston doctor, while only four per cent of those that go over the top in the trenches are killed. Which shows it is very dangerous to be a baby.

Some candidates seem to talk about fitness, when the real question is whether they have helped enough other candidates get office so as to secure support for themselves.

It is with a glorious sense of patriotic self-sacrifice that some of the steam-fitters work Sunday at the army cantonment heating plants for $32 a day.

The German spies aren't in any danger in this country, as they can always get the chance to roam at will simply by calling themselves Austrians.

Now it would be about like the Germans to go in and destroy Venice, thereby persuading the Italians to fight 'em to the last ditch.

The German spies must have mislaid their gunnishes the night the British tanks went over the top.

So far the pacifists have not tried their words of reason and justice on any mad dogs or wild bulls.

The supply of foresters is said to exceed the demand, but there are never enough wood choppers.

The Germans are having their troubles lining up the Hindenburg line.

Children are dying for lack of sugar, but of course the ice cream soda joints must be supplied at all hazards.

SUNDAY.

Some say the Lord made Sunday so that weary man could rest. Six days he gave us all to toil; the seventh day he blessed.

"Thou shalt not work on this day," he said, "nor drive the ox unto the plow, nor the ass unto the manger."

"Remember Thou the Sabbath Day," the law was made in Heaven. And yet it is the busiest day of all my busy seven.

He finds my bed at 7 o'clock, his fingers poke my eyes.

"Oh, daddy, it is Sunday now!" the little mischievous cries.

"And you have promised you would play in the yard," he says.

The seventh day I've pledged to him, and that's one pledge I keep. Right then we start our round of fun. We ride to London town, and never pause for breath or rest until the sun goes down.

Something to do from dawn to dusk is his little mind is planned.

He rules me with that smile of his; I bow to each command.

No rest to me that youngster gives, he owns the seventh day.

And he is sure that every hour of it is filled with play.

And off his gentle mother says, when weariness I claim.

"You've taught him to expect all this; you've put yourself to blame."

Some say the Lord made Sunday so that weary man could rest. Six days he gave us all to toil; the seventh day he blessed.

Yet I believe the Sabbath Day was set apart to be

The time when little boys should know their daddies' company.

"Let him idle my life," I put my cares away.

And share with him from dawn to dusk the games he wants to play.

MUCH WORK IS BEING TURNED IN BY WOMEN

Seventeen Baby Quilts Turned in Yesterday to Local Red Cross Chapter by Woman of La Prairie.

The hospital supplies committee of the Red Cross local chapter has received within a week, large boxes of supplies from several out-of-town groups, including Milton, Orfordville, Evansville and the Johnstown and Rock Prairie group. Mrs. Frank Finch and Miss Roder of the La Prairie group, east division, brought in a pile of seventeen baby quilts.

An important part of the work of the American Red Cross in France and Belgium is among the refugees. Many returning refugees and repatriates have earth under them and sky over their heads, and the American Red Cross for the most part, is under these circumstances they look to the Red Cross for everything that makes for comfort in life—food, shelter, clothing. Among these desperate people are many babies in dire need of warm clothing.

These ladies deserve especial credit as there are but ten members and often only half that number are able to brave the four or five mile ride to the meetings which are held at Mrs. Finch's home and one good German member even walked four miles carrying a large bundle of pieces.

The quilts, made of small pieces, some old and some new, are beautifully pieced and are a source of pride and pleasure to the committee as showing what can be accomplished by effort and perseverance, and a reminder of the old saying, "Despise not the day of small things."

URGES WAR SAVING TO MEET EXPENSES

Washington, Dec. 5.—War bonds must be sold to the American people to the extent of $5,640,000,000 and $683,200,000 in war savings certificates must be sold by June 30, 1918, the end of the present fiscal year, to meet the expenses of the United States in conducting its share in the war against Germany, according to the annual report of William G. McAdoo, secretary of the treasury, submitted to congress today.

To effect this tremendous program of financing the American people must begin saving as they never have saved before, and, in addition, it may be necessary to impose new regulations on how capital shall be expended for private enterprises in order to insure success of government financing plans, the secretary declared.

To organize the country for the most effective war work it may be necessary to grant government financial aid not only to the railroads, but to other essential industries, Secretary McAdoo indicated.

Disbursements for the following fiscal year, that ended June 30, 1919, are estimated at $12,804,034,000, not including loans to the allies which will add approximately $6,000,000,000 more if continued at the present rate.

The secretary's figures indicate that the first two years of the war will take from America's pocket $37,000,000,000 and $38,000,000,000.

Of the current year's expenditures, the following are estimated:

News Notes from Movieland

—BY DAISY DEAN—

Jane Cowl, who recently made her moving picture debut in "The Spreading Dawn," was born in Boston, and probably inherited much of her remarkable ability from her mother, who was a talented singer, but lacked the physical strength to develop her work. While yet in her teens Miss Cowl began contributing verses and prose to magazines and newspapers.

Miss Cowl's first stage engagement was in a small part in "Sweet Klity Bellairs," which was being rehearsed at the time. After a season she was given another small part in "The Rose of the Rancho." Then came a season with David Warfield in "A Grand Army Man," which Miss Cowl refers to as the greatest opportunity in her life the opportunity to play with a great artist.

So well did she profit by her experience in that piece that David Belasco noticed she was ready for a leading role, and cast her for the leading part in "Is Matrimony a Failure?" This was her first real important part. After the close of the tour Miss Cowl went to the Union Hill (N. J.) stock company, where she put in a year and received invaluable training. Upon her return she had one short engagement in "The Upstart," which failed, and then she assumed the leading feminine role in "The Gamblers."

By these steps she reached the production which was to make her famous. Bayard Veiller had written "Within the Law," and Miss Cowl was selected to create the role of Mary Turner. It was a tremendous success. After two seasons she went to the coast to create a role in "The Song Bird," but never played in the play. Instead she returned to New York and became the heroine in "Common Clay," playing the part of Ellen Neal, in which she had a success equal to that of Mary Turner.

It was at this time that she turned playwright. With Jane Murfin she wrote "Lilac Time" and starred in the production. It was an immediate success. It was while this production was at its height that Miss Cowl decided to join Goldwyn Pictures and become a star of the screen in "The Spreading Dawn."

Dorothy Dalton is the recipient of the following accolade, written by an ardent admirer:

A SPIRITUAL CRISIS

William Allen White recently returned from France where he has been for the American Red Cross, says: "Everywhere there is a turning toward religion."

Two million American men are under arms. Hundreds of thousands of them have no church affiliations, and have had no personal interest in religion. Now they are turning for help to one higher than they.

A million testaments are needed for these men at once. How many will you provide for?

Army and Navy Chaplains and the Y. M. C. A. Secretaries will see that each man who will accept one shall have it! They report the demand far exceeds the supply.

How Much Will You Give?
25 cents supplies a Testament for one.

$2.00 provides for a squad!
$25.00 suffices for a company of 100 men!

$500 supplies a regiment of 2,000 men!

Send your contribution to this paper. We will see that it reaches Mr. William Pouike, Treasurer of the Fund, Bible House, New York.

War Develops Sound-Spelling Method Of Teaching French.

How Professor de Lapparent developed a modern and simple method for the rapid acquisition of French is one of the great constructive achievements to grow out of the war with Germany. The necessity of knowing French was so apparent that the de Lapparent method immediately became popular.

It is made available for everybody in The Soldiers-Sailors Diary and English-French Dictionary, a remarkable book of pocket size bound in durable textile leather which is being furnished to readers by newspapers of America and Canada.

Two primary reasons influenced the papers to undertake this work, first to encourage the study of French as a convenience, and as an aid to promotion; second to encourage the keeping of war records by individuals so that events as they appeared to many different participants might be set down when still fresh in memory.

A diary, like a camera, fixes definitely the time and place of important events making a permanent record on the scene of action.

The Soldiers-Sailors Diary and English-French Dictionary is being distributed on a coupon plan explained elsewhere in this paper. Civilians as well as those in the military service find the book valuable.

$20,000 Bail.
Waukegan, Dec. 5.—Whether Grace Lusk, awaiting trial on the charge of murdering the wife of Dr. Roberts, former state veterinarian, will be released on bail depends upon whether she can secure bonds amounting to $20,000. Judge Martin Lueck has held that Miss Lusk can be admitted to bail, but at the same time expressed the thought that in the event the defendant took her own life her bonds would be held liable to the full amount of security.

Theatrical and Moving Picture Benefit Performances Will be Given all Over The United States Friday, December 7th

All the proceeds are for that wonderful institution, the AMERICAN RED CROSS—50% of the receipts to the local Janesville Chapter Red Cross and 50% to the National Headquarters at Washington.

These Janesville Theatres will donate the money derived from matinees Friday, this week:

Apollo Theatre, Vaudeville program: "Nine Little Reubens," "The Reckless Trio," "Rose and Rosana," with other features. Admission, 20c. Special Matinee 4:15 P. M.

The Majestic Theatre: The picture, "The Rainbow Girl." Matinee 2:30 P. M. Admission 11c.

The Beverly Theatre: The Paramount Picture, Vivian Martin in "The Sunset Girl." Admission, 11c. Matinee 2:30 P. M.

The Red Cross is the great emergency provider for the suffering—its strong arm embraces all war zones and reaches out a helping hand to the afflicted in and out of the trenches and battlefields—it gives spirit to the disheartened soldiers—it saves the men, women and children from starving—it succors the refugees—it feeds the prisoners in enemy camps—it provides comforts and necessities to our soldiers in this country and abroad—its work is unceasing and never ending—its branches spread out and touch every community in the United States—its need for funds is large and every penny is expended wisely by those who practically give their time without pay to the great cause of humanity.

The generosity of the theatrical people over the country in making this special matinee donation is commendable and the local theaters are to be congratulated for their share in this great work.

Every admission to these matinees will be a helpful bit to the Red Cross. Will you be one to assist?

ARTHUR SHATTUCK A FINISHED MUSICIAN DELIGHTS AUDIENCE

Noted Pianist Appeared at Congregational Church Under Auspices of the Apollo Club.

Seldom have music-lovers had the opportunity of hearing such a splendid pianist as Arthur Shattuck in so varied and complete a program as was enjoyed by the audience at the Congregational church Tuesday evening under the auspices of the Apollo club. Possessed of all the elements necessary to make him a pianist of the first rank, which enviable position Mr. Shattuck has attained in a short space of time, his phrasing was so clean cut that there was a clarity of tone to his notes that is seldom obtained by musicians.

His wonderful musical insight, feeling, imagination, with a delicacy of perception almost beyond compare, which helped him to demonstrate he is one of the most finished artists who makes all the music his own. His instrument was subordinate to his touch, showing the player a gentleness of courage and convictions. His selections gave him an opportunity to demonstrate his wonderful emotion from grave to gay, from lively to severe.

Brahm's Intermezzo, "O 117," was wonderful in its portrayal. Nocheles Conte d'infant, a child's fairy tale, most realistic, while Thalberg's Fantasie on the Serenade and Minuet from Don Juan, called for repeated encores to which the artist responded. His closing number, Liszt-Busoni Polonaise, was a fitting ending to the most delightful evening possible.

That more people did not avail themselves of the opportunity is to be regretted, and the Apollo club is to be congratulated upon the wonderful work it is doing to give citizens of Janesville an opportunity of listening to the inspirations of such talented musicians as they bring here to make up their programs. The following is the program of the evening:

Fantasie in C Minor.....Mozart
Intermezzo O. 117.....Brahms
Rhapsodie in E Flat.....Brahms

Gavotte and Variations.....Rameau

Nocturne B Flat.....Field

Serenade from "Damnation of Faust".....Berlioz-Redon
Fantasie on the Serenade and Minuet from Don Juan.....Thalberg

Heart and Home Problems

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Does a child's weight change? If not, how much? I am fifteen years old and weigh 135 pounds.

About a year ago I met a boy, but I did not like him very well. He had been corresponding since then and he has sent me several boxes of candy. But I have not gone any place with him. There is another boy I like a lot better than this one, but my mother won't let me go with him because he is much older than I am. Would you drop the first boy and be friendly with the older one?

(3) One time some girls and I went to another school to take examinations. There were some boys came just and one of the boys told some of the kids that he would like to meet me, but I have not heard anything from him. Do you think he really wanted to meet me or was he just talking? I told my mother about him and she said that she had heard of him and he was a very nice boy.

(4) When a boy and a girl are introduced should they shake hands?

(5) Walking tends to reduce the weight just as eating tends to increase it. I think you will find it helpful to eat fewer potatoes and not drink water with your meals. One hundred and thirty-five pounds isn't too much to weigh if you are over five feet tall.

(2) You are too young to go with any boy. Since your mother objects to one of the boys do not consider him at all.

As people grow in years they become wiser judges of character. When your mother does not like a boy you should respect her opinion—especially since you are so young.

(3) If the boy had wanted to meet you, very much he would certainly have done so.

(4) It is all right either way. To shake hands is a little more cordial.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Does a girl twenty-one years old engaged to a boy twenty-two have to have her parents consent to marry? These parents can't get over the fact that she isn't a kid although she works of her living in her ideas. She loves this man and I advise her to obey the Bible and "Leave her father's home and cling to her husband."

It does not satisfy her family because he is poor. She is well up in society—not in high society, but popular. She is willing to leave all this for him because she loves him so. Would not she be justified in marrying him and follow her own conscience and mind?

It would be very unwise for a girl of twenty-one to marry a young man of twenty-two. He is too young to assume the responsibilities of marriage and should not be burdened with a family until he is at least twenty-five.

The Bible phrase does not apply to this girl's case, because the boy is not her husband.

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

(Miss Hoyt writes in this paper all questions on matters of etiquette addressed to her in care of the paper. If a personal answer is desired enclose a two-cent stamp.)

When living in a small town, a lady should not introduce two of her acquaintances residing in the same town unless they have asked her to do so.

BRIDE-TO-BE: Of course it is always better to be married at home if one can; but it is quite proper for you to go to your future home and be married there if it is inconvenient for any good reason, for your future husband to come and get you.

If you are in comfortable circumstances, and can afford it, they should pay for the journey, and some member of your family should go with you and see you married. But if the bride is poor, the arrangements should be made by the bride's family. If you are poor, your fiancé should pay for the journey, and some member of your family should go with you and see you married. But if the bride is poor, the arrangements should be made by the bride's family.

The Bible phrase does not apply to this girl's case, because the boy is not her husband.

SIDE TALKS

SEEING RESEMBLANCES.

Are you one of those people who are constantly seeing resemblances? That is a habit of mine which I would like to talk over with the letter writers who also have it.

People who see resemblances and who laugh at you when you try to make them see them are excused from attendance today.

By the way, don't they exasperate these people. They will look at a wonderful likeness that they simply must recognize and tell you positively that they do not see it at all. Personally I am a dark suspicion that there are none so blind as those who won't see.

It is fun tracking down resemblances.

I seldom go anywhere that I do not see someone who resembles someone else. A skeptic housemate assures me that I could get over this if I tried. Get over it indeed! On the contrary it is a habit of mind which I encourage. It is so interesting to collect resemblances and to see in just what they consist. Sometimes it is a question of the shape of the face or features, again it is an elusive expression, then there are people who are very unlike on the whole but resemble each other in some small way, a smile, the sweep of an eyebrow, the height of the cheek bone.

Never Tell People They Look Like Each Other.

There is one thing that I have learned from my experience in resemblance seeing which may be worth mentioning to beginners, and that is that it is not usually advisable to tell the person concerned about it, if there is any ill feeling about it. If you tell a person that he looks like a certain person, even though you think the person is quite as good looking as he. And if the person is not so good looking, well to tell him that he looks like a certain person, even though you think the person is quite as good looking as he. And if the person is not so good looking, well to tell him that he looks like a certain person, even though you think the person is quite as good looking as he.

Some people really have doubles. Although so many resemblances are only partial, now and then one finds really startling ones. Just the other day I stood not three feet away from a woman in an elevator and actually could not make up my mind that she was not one of my near neighbors.

Most of my experiences with resemblances I regard as universal but there is one that I do not feel as sure about. Perhaps part of his character may help me out. When I am tired I always see more resemblances. If I go shopping on a day when I am overtired, I often turn I think I am a double friend. I trust none of the anti-resemblance have chance to read this far, for I can just fancy the spirit in which they will pounce upon that statement.

A Great Discovery

Swollen hands, ankles, feet are due to a dropsical condition, often caused by disordered kidneys. Naturally when the kidneys are deranged the blood is filled with poisonous waste matter, which settles in the feet, ankles and wrists, or under the eyes in bag-like formations.

As a remedy for these easily recognized symptoms of inflammation caused by uric acid—such as scalding urine, backache and frequent urination, as well as sediment in the urine, or if uric acid in the blood has caused rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, gout, it is simply wonderful how quickly Anuric acts; the pains and stiffness rapidly disappear.

one turned and devoured him with her eyes, so that it needed all his manhood to hold him back from being her slave that minute. For in that minute she left no charm unexpressed—sex—mystery—beauty—flattery (her eyes could flatter as a dumb dog's flatter a human)—grace unutterable—mystery—she used every art on him she knew. Yet he stood the test.

"Even if you fall me, well-beloved, I will love you! The gods who gave you me will know how to make you love; and lessons are to learn. If you fall me I will forgive, knowing that in the end the gods will never let you fall me! You are mine, and earth is ours, for the old gods intend it so!"

She seemed to expect him to take her in his arms again; but he stood respectfully and made no answer, nor any move. Grim and strong his jaw was, like the sleeper's, and the dark hair three days old on it softened nothing of its lines. His Roman nose and steady, dark, full eyes suggested no compromise. Yet he was good to look at. She had not loved when she said she loved him, and he understood her and was sorry. But he did not look sorry, nor did he offer any argument to smooth her face. He was a servant of

Forty Years' Success

For a business to be successful for forty years means a great deal. Among other things, it means remarkable excellence in the product it sells. No other article can be sold on a large scale for so many years; and it must not only be good at the outset, but so good that the progress of forty years shall not develop any better article to supersede it.

So women can, with confidence, depend upon that old, tried, and tested remedy for women's ailments, Lydia's Pink Pills. Vegetable Compound. As popular as ever, though it was placed on the market before the centennial year, 1876.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lousy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" the brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. 10c and 25c a box. All druggists.

the raj; his life and his love had been India's since the day he first buckled on his spurs, and Yasmin would not have understood that.

Nor did she understand that, even supposing he had loved her with all his heart, not on any conditions would he have admitted it until absolutely free, any more than that if she crucified him he would love her the same, supposing that he loved her at all. Nor did she trust the "old gods" too well, or let them work unaided.

"Come with me, Athelstan!" she said. She took his arm—found little jeweled slippers in a closet hewn in the wall—put them on and led him to the curtains he had entered by. She led down the steps, and at the foot told him to put on his slippers, as if he were a child. Then, hurrying as if those opal eyes of hers were indifferent to dark or daylight, she picked her way among bowlders that he could feel but not see, along a floor that was only smooth in places, for a distance that was long enough by two or three times to lose him altogether. When he looked back there was no sign of red lights behind him. And when he looked forward, there was a dim outer light in front and a whiff of the cool fresh air that presaged the dawn.

She led him through a gap on to a ledge of rock that hung thousands of feet above the home of thunder, a ledge less than six feet wide, less than twenty long, tilted back toward the cliff. There they sat, watching the stars. And there they saw the dawn come.

Morning looks down into Khyber hours after the sun has risen, because the precipices shut it out. But the peaks on every side are very beacons of the range at the earliest peep of dawn. In silence they watched day's dawn (with the peaks with rose jeweled fingers—she waiting as if she expected the marvel of it all to make King speak).

It was cold. She came and snuggled close to him, and it was so they watched the sparkle of dawn's jewels die and the peaks grow gray again, she with an arm on his shoulder and strands of her golden hair blown past his face.

"Of what are you thinking?" she asked him at last.

"Of India, princess."

"What of India?"

"She lies helpless."

"Ah! You love India?"

"Yes."

"You shall love me better! You shall love me better than your life! Then, for love of me, you shall own the India you think you love! This letter shall go!" She tapped her bosom. "It is best to cut you off from India first. You shall lose that you may win!"

She got up and stood in the gap, snuffing mockingly, framed in the darkness of the cave behind.

"I understand!" she said. "You think you are my enemy. Love and hate never lived side by side. You shall see!"

Her hands slipped into his, soft and warm; her eyes fastened on his and held them. And as they did so King sank, like a sack half-empty and tipped over sideways on the floor asleep.

He neither dreamed nor was conscious of anything, but slept like a dead man, having fought against her mesmerism harder than he knew.

Statesmen, generals, outlaws, all make their big mistakes and manage to recover. Very nearly always it is an apparently little mistake that does most damage in the end, something unnoticeable at the time, that grows in geometrical proportion, minus instead of plus.

Yasmin made her little mistake that minute to believing King was utterly mesmerized at last and utterly in her power. Whence in truth he was only weary. It may be that she gave him orders in his sleep, after the accepted manner of mesmerists; but if she did, they never reached him; he was far too fast asleep. He slept so deep and long that he was not conscious of men's voices, nor of being carried, nor of time, nor of anxiety, nor of anything.

CHAPTER XVIII.

When King awoke he lay on a comfortable bed in a cave he had never yet seen, but there was no trace of Yasmin, nor of the men who must have carried him to it. He had no idea how long he had slept. It did not matter. He had probed Khyber caves, and knew the whole purpose for which the lawless thousands had been gathering and were gathering still. Remained, to thwart that purpose. He began at the beginning, where he stood.

Behind him in a corner, at the back of the cave was a narrow fissure, hung with a leather curtain, that was doubtless the door into Khyber's heart; but the only way to the outer air was along a ledge above a dizzying precipice, so high that the huge waterfall looked like a little stream below. He was in a very eagle's aerle; the upper rim of Khyber's gorge seemed not more than a quarter of a mile above him.

Round the corner, ten feet from the entrance, stood a guard, armed to the teeth, with a rifle, a sword, two pistols and a long curved Khyber knife stuck handy in his girdle. As he looked, a little procession of women, led by a man, came up the ledge. The man was armed, but the women were burdened with his own belongings—the medicine chest—his saddle and bridle—his unruffled mule-pack. They came past the dumb man on guard and laid them all at King's feet just inside the cave.

He smiled, with that genial, face-transforming smile of his that has so often melted a road for him through sullen crowds. But the man in charge of the women did not grin. He was suffering. He growled at the women, and they went away like obedient animals, to sit half-way down the ledge and await further orders. He himself made as if to follow them, and the dumb man on guard did not pay much attention; he let women and man pass behind him, stepping one pace forward toward the edge to make more room. That was his last entirely voluntary act in this world.

With a suddenness that disarmed all opposition the other humped himself against the wall and backed into the dumb man's back, sending him, weapons and all, hurtling over the precipice to the caverns into which the water tumbled thousands of feet away. The other ruffian spat after him, and then walked back to where King stood.

"Now heal me my boils!" he said, grinning at last, doubtless from pleasure at the prospect. He was the same man who had stood on guard at the "guest-cave" when Ismail fed King out to see the Cavern of Earth's Drink.

The temptation was to fling the brute after his victim. The temptation always is to do the wrong thing—to cap wrath with wrath, injustice with vengeance. That way wars begin and are never ended. King beckoned him into the cave, and bent over the chest of medical supplies. Then, finding the light better for his purpose at the entrance, he called the man back and made him sit down on the box.

The business of lancing boils is not especially edifying in itself; but that particular minor operation probably saved India. But for hope of it the man with the boils would never have stood two turns on guard hand running and let the relief sleep on; so he would not have been on duty when the message came to carry King's belongings to his new cave of residence. There would have been no object in killing the dumb man, and so there would have been an expert with a loaded rifle to keep Muhammad Anim lurking down the trail.

Muhammad Anim came—like the devil, to scotch King's faith. He had followed the women with the loads. He stood now, like a big bear on a mountain side, swaying his head from side to side six feet away. King jumped, nearly driving the lance into a new place in his patient's neck.

"Let him go!" growled Muhammad Anim. "Go, thou! Stand guard over the women until I come."

The mullah turned a rifle this way and that in his paws, like a great bear danclog. The very Orakzal Pathan who had sat next King in the Cavern of Earth's Drink, was creeping up be-

"Thou Liest! It was My Men Who Got the Head That Let Thee In! Else Why Are Thou Here?"

And the women and already had his rifle leveled at the man with boils.

"Aye!" said the mullah, watching King's eyes. "He has done well, and the road is clear!"

The man with boils offered no fight. He dropped his rifle and threw his hands up. In a moment the Orakzal Pathan was in command of two rifles, holding King from among the women, whom he seemed to regard as his plunder for. The women appeared supremely indifferent in any event. King nodded back to him. A friend is a friend in the "Hills," and rare is the man who spares his enemy.

"None comes to earn a living in the 'Hills,'" growled the mullah, swaying his head slowly and devouring King with cruel calculating eyes. "Why art thou here?"

Orfordville News

Orfordville, Dec. 4.—Mrs. Verna Mowse-Millard of Lima Center is visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Mowse.

Carpenters and painters have finished work on the John Souman warehouse. The building has been wired for electricity, and a more up-to-date building of the kind would be hard to find. The building is one hundred twenty-six feet long, the upper story being in one room. Below is the sorting room, the receiving room and the office. Two costume closets have been installed on the first floor and the assorting room has been sheathed with plaster board, which assures a warm, comfortable place for the work hands. Orfordville is certainly to be congratulated.

Mrs. Otto Gaarder is assisting in the bank while her husband, whose place she is filling, is visiting with friends in Iowa.

On Thursday evening there will be held a social at the Center school house for the benefit of the Y. W. C. A. Refreshments will be served and a program rendered.

A. Hamm has installed an electric cooking stove in his bakery. His experience with gasoline was not satisfactory, after having three fires, and he determined to make a change.

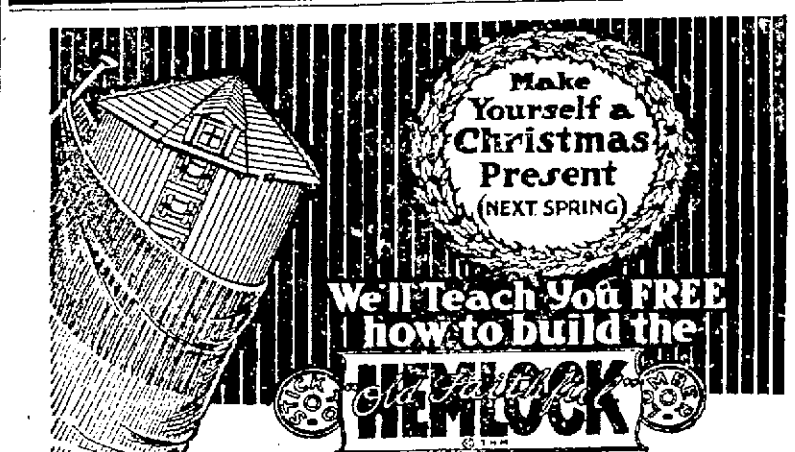

A milk dealers' association is being formed in this locality. The farmers are responding with great enthusiasm.

The second number of the lecture course will be held on the evening of December 15. M. H. Jackson will deliver his famous lecture, "The Message From the Trenches." Mr. Jackson comes highly recommended and his lecture is spoken of as one of the strongest things of the kind that has been given from the public platform.

USE THE WATERWAYS AND WIN THE WAR

(BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.) Washington, Dec. 5.—"Use the waterways and win the war!" is the slogan of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, which opened its fourteenth annual convention here today. The auditorium of the New National Museum today welcomed governors of states and territories, mayors of cities, towns and villages and many prominent representatives of commerce and business. The fundamental purpose of the conclave, it is announced, is not to urge appropriations for new projects, but to plan how the various branches of government may most effectively cooperate to use the waterways at this time of railroad crisis and congestion.

No Freeze—No Blow-Over—No Iron Hoops—No Staves

Of course, every farmer that hasn't a silo wants one and half of those that have one want another. It is calculated that silage feeding saves 10c on a pound of butter, 40c a hundred on milk, $1.50 a hundred on beef or mutton. And it certainly saves labor and space in feeding.

We do not sell silos. Our object is simply to make you acquainted with "Old Faithful" Hemlock, the right stuff to build your silo of, and a standard farm lumber for over 200 years. We tell how to make your silo rot proof, too.

MICHIGAN CLOSES A SUCCESSFUL SEASON

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 5.—The University of Michigan football team has closed one of the most spectacular seasons ever recorded in the local annals. When the season began, the team minus nearly every star of a year ago looked utterly hopeless. Yost, far from discouraged, whipped his green material into a machine which ripped strong and weak opposition to pieces. Finally came the tragedy at Pennsylvania, and then, the University, shelled by injuries and tactical penalties, closed their season by losing to Northwestern.

Despite Michigan's sky-rocketty season, there are few sad hearts in the university. Two reasons are given. One is the fact that Michigan was "between the devil and the deep sea" this year. First, the authorities put the team on foot, and then they took it off and then Michigan found herself back in the western conference but too late to be officially considered a championship contender. Nobody got excited over Michigan's eleven until after the Nebraska game, and yet neither the contest with Cornell, nor the struggle with Pennsylvania, aroused the keen interest that such games have developed in the past. It is quite generally admitted on the campus that real interest in football this season came after the game with Northwestern had been played.

Full moon night, when we are really back in the conference, seems to be the slogan of every loyal Michigan fan. Michigan developed a squad of promising players and nearly every one of them is in the line of college. If the war is over, other and greater stars may be back next fall. Followers of the Yost team are too anxious to hear the "Go U-M" of Wisconsin and the "Go Chicago" of Stagg's warriors to talk about what did and what didn't happen this year.

It is expected that about fifteen men will receive letters for their 1917 performances. Of this number, eleven are expected to return next autumn. The freshman eleven of this fall promises to field a half dozen strong candidates and two stars. And among the athletes now fighting for Uncle Sam are a half dozen gridiron veterans whose absence from college this year makes their return for another season with the Yost brigade.

UNIVERSITY COACH MAY MANAGE CARDS

New York, Dec. 5.—The whirl that started when Branch Rickey announced he was after Jack Doherty to manage the Cardinals may be settled into a calm affair some of these days by an announcement that another college coach has joined the ranks of big league managers.

L. W. Scott, coach of the Ohio State university baseball team at Columbus, is being very seriously considered as a probable successor to Miller Huggins, and Rickey is said to be on the verge of making him an acceptable offer.

Questioned recently regarding his feelings toward St. John, Rickey said: "I have the biggest regard for Mr. St. John and he is one of the best baseball men in the country."

However, as is usually the case when Rickey is talking, he did not commit himself.

St. John is a graduate of Wooster university and has more than a fair standing among college coaches. He has sent many a man into the ranks of professional baseball, developed from the rawest material, Wayne Wright, now a member of the St. Louis Browns, is a product of the St. John school.

Rickey and St. John are very close friends. St. John, in fact, is a successor of Rickey's, for the present president of the Cardinals went to Ohio State and assumed the duties of baseball coach when he quit the Cardinals on account of a bad throwing arm. Rickey is said to desire a man with a college degree to manage the Cardinals, and, of course, wants some one with whom the presidential feeling would have considerable weight.

In St. John he would be getting just that kind of a man.

The National league already has begun to develop an interest in St. John. Hugo Bezdek, manager of the Pirates, is a former college coach. Fred Mitchell holds a degree. Christy Mathewson is a college graduate. Rickey himself is a college graduate and another collection would put the booklet product managers in the National league in the shade of college diplomas.
